Introduction to Version 5

1. About Ykywtmsmw

The very first ykywtmsmw (You Know You Watch Too Much Sailor Moon When...) page was created in 1995 by Starfox (website is now closed. Formerly <http://starfox.simplenet.com>). He published his own ideas and those submitted by other moonies. The page has become very successful (on his commemorative page Starfox later stated that in a single 24 hour span (on a certain day in December 1997), the site received 703 different visitors (individual IP addresses) and 14,589 hits (requests for files)) but despite of this the website was closed by Starfox on December 24, 1997 after getting 1420 entries (published ones). All content of the website was declared as free for use by anyone.

Mara Jade (<http://www.cstone.net/~lbrannon/lauren/smtomuch.htm>) put back online almost all ykywtmsmw jokes compiled by Starfox (with some editing/changing the order of entries) and continued the list, adding the fifth page (the list of Starfox was divided into four pages). Mara Jade's website was abandoned by her in 1999.

Among other notable ykywtmsmw pages there exist so-called The Annals of Ykywtmsmw, compiled by Tom Ragsdale and Gregory Lam from Cult of Serenity page (website is now abandoned: <http://www.geocities.com/TimesSquare/4818/>). Their work includes 800 ykywtmsmw statements (some of them repeat jokes from Starfox's list).

Smpsycho (website is closed: <http://www.geocities.com/Tokyo/Towers/2374/index.html>) have written a list of 563 jokes that accent on original version of Bishoujo Senshi Sailor Moon (as opposed to the North-American one).

Starting in 1996-1997 many other YKYWTMSMWs pages were created by different moonies. Sometime their titles vary like "You are obsessed by Sailor Moon when" or "You like Sailor Moon too much when" but "YKYWTMSMW" title is used the most often.

2. About this compilation

The reasons for compiling this document were as follows:

1) YKYWTMSMW pages were much more popular several years ago. Since then many of them are closed and abandoned. Now there are very few moonies on the Net (if any) who update their YKYWTMSMW pages on a regular basis. In fact, up to 80% entries in the compilation were collected from already closed or abandoned (updated the last time in 1999-2000 years) websites. Hopefully, this work will help this field of knowledge not to be forgotten.

2) Having all ykywtmsmw jokes in a single document makes it very easy to print out them all, thus freeing a moonie who will be willing to have a copy of such a book from necessity to collect YKYWTMSMWs on their own.

Ykywtmsmw statements in the compilation were collected from all over the Internet. Since many pages included statements taken from Starfox's list (and from other web pages also) and many other pages have the same (similar in sense) statements (often inadvertently), only unique (original) jokes are included in this book. Obviously identical statements (e.g.: "During a storm you keep shouting "Jupiter Thunder Crash!" - and - "You can't wait till a thunder storm so you can call out "Jupiter Thunder Crash".") were excluded; the ones that used the same idea but with different hints of meaning (e.g.: "You glue a crescent moon on your forehead" - and - "You tattoo a crescent moon on your forehead") are included into compilation.

Apart from excluding repetitive statements, ykywtmsmw jokes listed in the compilation appear in the same form as they were published at their original web pages. Some orthographical errors were corrected, but as far as spelling concerns arguable matters (e.g. personal names) the statements were not edited. Url addresses of original pages where ykywtmsmw jokes were taken from appear in the compilation in blue color; the comments, written by the authors for their pages and necessary for understanding the sense of some statements, appear in red color. All copyrights to YKYWTMSMWs belong to their creators. Entries are enumerated all through for convenience of citation (quotation).

3. Distribution of this book

The compilation is totally free for distribution and if you have your own website I encourage you to put it on your website for download (or for viewing online) without asking any additional permission of the author of these lines.

Introduction to Version 6

by redblade7 (new maintainer)

For the introduction to version 6, I will first post my introduction thread to sailormoonforum.com, dated February 5, 2017:

Name is Red, I am 32.

My introduction to Sailor Moon is kinda interesting, and funny.

When Sailor Moon was out, it was kind of a "my little sister likes that" thing I didn't really care about. Years later when anime became big, I did like stuff like DBZ, Cowboy Bebop, Outlaw Star, etc. But I never really thought about Sailor Moon. I lost interest in anime at some point during college.

10-15 years after that (last year), two people introduced me to a show called Akazukin Chacha (which I like a lot, in fact I like the characters a lot better than Sailor Moon). I noticed that Akazukin Chacha, when transformed into "Magical Princess" form, had a "Sailor Moon costume".

So I asked my sister (now in her late 20s) if she used to watch Sailor Moon, since I remember her liking it. She told me it was a thing all the girls watched every morning at 6:30 before they left for school. I showed her the Akazukin Chacha transformation, since she was wearing a "Sailor Moon costume". She told me the transformation sequence was "similar", but that it was not a "Sailor Moon costume", but the Japanese school uniform. Unfortunately she said she was too young to remember details of the show, other than that Sailor Venus was her favorite character.

I started watching Sailor Moon (the Viz dubs and some of the subs on Hulu). I am at S, have seen a few of the subtitled versions released after the Blu-Ray (just after Chibiusa returns, but no unicorns or Sailor Saturn yet). I have also seen the dubbed first two seasons of Crystal. I know little about the American versions (obviously) but from what I have seen on YouTube and elsewhere, I do prefer the Viz voice actors, though I like the reverb and sound effects that the American versions have.

My opinion on Crystal is that it's "a more serious show for adults" than "a fun show for everyone". Not better or worse, just different.

My favorite character is Sailor Mars, actually Rei Hino as I can personally relate to the character, plus she's the sexiest :) (No, I'm not interested in hentai.)

After watching Akazukin Chacha and part of Sailor Moon, I came to have an interest in magical girl shows, as I said I like Akazukin Chacha's characters better than Sailor Moon. I feel the same way about Wedding Peach, as I love the spiritual themes a lot better than the superhero themes of Sailor Moon. Could never get into Pretty Cure as it seemed more of a kids' show. I am taking a break from watching Sailor Moon as I watch Nanoha, have seen the first series already and have started to watch A.

I just bought the Sailor Moon manga box set too, came in the mail today.

I know I have a lot to learn, including a lot more characters and story arcs (so far I like the Black Moon arc the best).

What do you think of my story?

The only things which have changed from that post as of now are that I have seen the full Viz English dub of S (which introduced me to Sailor Saturn) and I am now 33. I have also seen Nanoha A's, but was not interested in finishing watching Striker S or anything after.

The idea of a Version 6 of the book started when I obtained version 5 from an archive of sailorvgame.org provided by Anton-P (now known as Maraviollantes) to users of sailormoonforum.com. I noticed that the 6,000+ YKYWTMSMWs in the book would make great Linux fortune cookies, and had some help from some other individuals in creating the fortune cookies.

Over the following few months I had discovered and added more YKYWTMSMWs to the fortune cookie files, that had been written since v5 of the book was published in 2007. These included PGSM related entries, a large list of German ones that had been translated, several forks of v5 and previous editions of this book, entries related to Codename Sailor V, my own, and more, which (after removing duplicates, including missed duplicates in v5) updated the list from 6045 entries to 6596, which is 551 YKYWTMSMWs larger.

Being ten years later, it was clearly time for a new book. I proposed the idea of an update to Maraviollantes on sailormoonforum.com, who rejected it on grounds that due to the size of the book and changing times, nobody would care to read a compilation of YKYWTMSMWs anymore. As my goals are to archive material (and create Linux fortune cookies) rather than making a book for everyday reading purposes, I took over the book with his permission.

The distribution policy remains the same as version 5 (see "Introduction to Version 5" section 3 for more information).

I am a lot less strict than Maraviollantes on what qualifies as a duplicate entry, and intend to maintain the spelling/grammar errors and incorrect names due to being written by users younger at the time.

The base version of this book is now in ODT (LibreOffice) format, with PDF and TXT versions included. The TXT file differs in spacing and formatting, and is designed for compatibility with non-Unicode text editors and terminals. This means I had to remove "special characters" which, unfortunately, required the removal of the names of some authors. You can find their names in the ODT and PDF versions of the book.

I plan on releasing future versions of this book if more YKYWTMSMWs are created or discovered, perhaps on an annual (or, if needed, biannual) basis.

Enjoy!

2675. You are at an observatory on a tour (and the tour guide just happens to called Greg :) and you wonder if the tour guide is a Sailor Moon fan because he says "If you see something bright near the moon it's Mercury". 2696. You are playing volleyball, and then the same thing that happens to Serena when she's playing volleyball (she is standing there, about ready to bump the volleyball, when it suddenly hits you square on the forehead, and your head starts bobbing, and your head turns all red) happens to you and then you think that. 2699. You willingly go into comic stores again and again... you get some really strange looks for being a just-over-teenage female in a comic shop, searching desperately for Moon stuff in among the X-men, on the receiving end of snickers from all sorts of annoying pseudo-teenage boys, probably for the SM T-shirt you are proudly sporting... you then face the straaange looks when you actually ask if they have any SM merchandise.
2700. You have received scars from SM shopping. [Ophelia has a little story to go with this one: "True story! (True, stupid story) I opened one of those big, heavy, metal doors at the train station, on my way downtown to pick up some SM merchandise; however, my toe happened to be in the way. I was wearing sandals. It scarred. YET I STILL MADE IT DOWNTOWN AND GOT MY STUFF!!! I am proud of that scar...." But you must wear yours with a difference! (Hamlet, act 4, scene 5, line 206)] (who is thrilled to discover that when she wears her star-locket with her SM T-shirt, it hangs at just the right height to cover Chibi-Moon's excessively pink hair) (377-380 - emhegera@acs.ucalgary.ca (Ophelia))

2766. Your cat struck up a conversation, and it didn't strike you as odd.
